Red Vein and Skin Tag Removal

Red veins and spider veins are caused by lots of factors including hereditary, pregnancy, change in hormone levels, weight gain, long periods of standing, certain medications and also the backing up of blood. The most common places are the face, neck and legs. Red veins are often considered a cosmetic problem and electrolysis is a simple way to remove these unsightly facial veins. This is a cauterising method that uses an energy source to eliminate broken veins. It is suitable for men and woman and can be treated on all areas of the body. With this treatment you see instant results and is affordable for everyone. After this treatment you may resume normal activities. Instructions will be provided to insure healing and improvement of the treated area.

I had the red vein treatment in May 2012 after thinking about it for over 12 months or so. I was very apprehensive as it was on my face but Anna and Tessa made me feel very safe and comfortable. They explained the whole procedure to me and what may or may not occur. The treatment lasted less than ten minutes and was not painful at all. The results were immediate and I am so pleased that I had it done. No longer do I have to spend time everyday dotting my face with concealer. I feel I can go out without putting on foundation, I feel pretty and have so much more confidence. I would recommend anyone give it a try - Bex, Rangiora
